The race will doubtless be one of the most interesting of the season, and as a large amount of money has been staked upon the result, the attendance will doubtless be large and the excitement intense.

Gelatinous Lye.—The attention of the craft is asked to the advertisement in to-day's issue of a Gelatinous Lye, for printers use, manufactured by the pressman of the Enquirer establishment. MAN FOUND DROWNED.—About five o'clock Sunday evening the body of a man, partially decomposed, was found in the river, near Columbia. It was clad in black cloth coat, woolen pants of a reddish color, cotton shirt, and a check under-shirt. The man was about five feet seven inches in hight, and thirty years old; had dark whiskers and black hair. No marks of violence were found upon the body, and as the investigation developed nothing concerning his name or veloped nothing concerning his name or pre-vious history, the jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

THE RECENT STABBING AFFRAY IN THE FOURTH WARD.—Francis Rickey and Richard Sullivan were arraigned before Judge Lowe yesterday morning on a charge of stabbing with intent to kill two colored men, named Samuel Harris and Richard Colby, on the evening of the Fourth. The wounded men were unable to identify the parties, and Rickey was called to the stand. He stated that he saw Sullivan strike both men, and identified the knife produced in Court as the one used upon the occasion. He furthermore testified that Sullivan the him shile in jail that he had done the stabbing. Rickey was discharged, and Sullivan committed in default of bail in the sum of $2,500 for his appearance before the next term of the Court of Common Pleas.

ARREST OF AN ALLEGED BURGLAR AND DEALES IN COUNTERFEIT COIN.—A man named Joseph Redman, who has been engaged re-cently in selling a pamphlet entitled the Invalible Baak-note Counterfeit Detector, Infallible Bank-note Counterfeit Detector, was arrested near North Bend, evening before last, upon a charge of entering the premises of Matthias Blank, and stealing therefrom a watch and breast-pin. He was immediately taken before Justice Welsh, who held him to ball in the sum of $200 for his appearance before the Court of Common Pleas, in default of which he was committed to the County Jail, at which place he was received yeaterday morning about nine o'clock.

Business Man's Prayer-meeting.—A larger number of persons were in attendance at the Business Men's Prayer-meeting, yesterday, than usual, the room being literally jammed.

The chairman suggested the importance of encouraging young converts to give in their experience—excellent advice, and in accordance with the views expressed by us, a week or two since.

ance with the views expressed by us, a week or two since.

A gentleman rose and presented a written request for prayer in behalf of a young man, who had recently become convinced of the sinfulness of his course, and his inability to obtain salvation, except through the right-cousness of the Redeemer.

A stranger said that once, white standing with a companion on the shores of a river, he saw a man fall into the flood, and would have been drowned but for the timely assistance rendered by himself and his friend. Thus it was in the religious world; we are all sinking and drowning sinners, and can only be saved by the help of Christ. He was always able and always willing, and we had but to ask in faith and our salvation was sealed.

One gentleman spoke of the elderly brethone gentleman spoke of the elderly brethren present, who had been converted in their youth, as having long borne the burden of religion. We were indeed sorry to hear this expression from a Christian. Religious exercises are rather privileges than duties, and instead of being onercus, are certainly the reverse. "It costs much," says an old proverb, "to be religious, it costs more not to be 50," and we have siways found religious exercises rather a recreation than a task. If people could be convinced that the service of tiod is not a burden, we would have many more professors and practicers of religion.

Mars and Venus in the Ascendant-Riot Resulting from Passional Attraction.

Mars and Venus in the Ascendant-Riot Resulting from Passional Attraction.
A riot occurred on Vine-street Hill last Sunday afternoon, which originated in a very singular manner, and resulted in quite a serious injury to a couple of men. The procession of Bakers marched to that place, and while there they proceeded to amuse themselves, each couple—for there were a number of females in the party—after the bent of their own inclination.

One man, whose name we were unable to learn, in company with a woman, of whom he seemed to be very fond, separated himself from the company and at down upon the grass in close proximity to the residence of William Nichaus. The pair had not been seated long before they began to indulge themselves in all the expression of amorous regard, when Mr. N., thinking the woman was his daughter, ran to rescue her from the apparently affectionate but unchaste embraces of her male companion.

Upon arriving at the spot he discovered his mistake, and began to expostulate with the pair upon their conduct, and the effect it would have upon his children, who had not only witnessed their amorous encounter, but had also heard their endearing expressions.
This interruption seemed impertinent to the lascivious baker, who rose, and drawing a slung-shot, proceeded to use it very freely upon the head, face and shoulders of the man who had presumed to dictate what his morals should be, or how he should give expression to his passion.

Nichaus immediately "went in" after the most orthodox prize-ring style, and soon succeeded in disarming his opponent. It was now his turn to use the weapon, and he did it in the most scientific manner, cutting the head of the baker very badly and in a few minutes rendering him entirely hors du combat.

The vanquished bread-maker ran to his companions, informed them of the manner

minutes rendering him entirely hors du combat.

The vanquished bread-maker ran to his companions, informed them of the manner in which he had been treated, and implored their assistance. The company en mass ran to the house, knocked down a man whom they found at the gate, searched the premises to find the person who had beaten their comrade, and, being disappointed, broke-the windows in their thirst for revenge, and committed sundry depredations more remarkable for violence, rage and malice than any other human quality.

Yesterday, warrants were pseud for the arrest of the entire party, and it is more than probable the affair will come before the Police Court in some shape within a few days. Both the parties are said to have been quite seriously injured by the pugilistic encounter, but notwithstanding the melee, which was very general; and in which, as will be seen, the female took a prominent part, she escaped entirely unhurt.

This locality has been very productive of riot and bloodshed of late, but they have usually originated in the exercise of some other appetite; and a devotion to Bacchus seems to have been, in the past, more prolific of this kind of quarrels than any act of reverence to Venus. We carnestly hope that bereafter, whether those who resort to this locality woo the merry god or the laughter-loving queen, they may do it in a more peaceful manner, and escape without broken heads.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT IN BROWN CO.—THE MAYOR OF GEORGETOWN INSTANTLY KILLED, AND THREE OTHERS DANGEROUSLY WOUNDED, BY THE EXPLOSION OF A CANNON.—Last Saturday evening, just before a Douglas meeting, to be held at Georgetown in Brown Co, several persons were engaged in firing an old cannon, when a premature explosion occurred, the ramnod striking James Ousley, the Mayor of the town, in the left temple, and scattering his brains upon the grass; also carrying John Bailey a distance of about sixty feet, and very dasgerously wounding him. Ousley and Bailey are both young, and without family; end it is hoped the latter will recover.

on the Fourth of July, while several persons were firing the same cannon, a similar accident took place by which two persons, Homer Higgins and Robert Glaise, the former a youth of eighteen, and the latter about thirty and a man of family, were so severely wounded that it is doubtful if they will recover.

severely wounded that it is doubtful if they will recover.

The cannon is an old and very unsafe piece, and was spiked after the accident. Ousley was warned not to fire the cannon, but he said he was for Douglas, and would do so if he died for it. When told, while ramming the piece, to hold up his head, he said he would prefer to be killed at once, to being wounded as Higgins and Glaise had been. «Poor fellow, he realized his fatal wish!

A PITTSBURGER FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED.— A Pittsburger, named Hamilton Weeds, was found dead in his bed yesterday forenoon, about eleven o'clock, at the Raiiroad Hotel, found dead in his bed festerday forenoon, about eleven o'clock, at the Railroad Hotel, corner of Breadway and Front-streets. He had been engaged on some of the steamers lying at the wharf, and since the 26th of June had been stopping at the above-named hotel. On Sunday he complained of feeling unwell, but ate his supper as usual and retired. As he did not appear at breakfast yesterday morning, the landlord became alarmed, called at his door but received no answer, and after forcing his way into the room, found that he must have been dead for some time.

Coroner Carey was called upon and an inquest held upon the body which resulted in a verdiet of death from epilepsy. The turgid condition of the face, the rigidity of the muscles of the hands and feet, the congestion of the conjunctiva and the distortion of the neck, left little doubt in regard to the cause of his demise. The deceased was about twenty-five years of age and unmarried.

A New Yorker Swindled out of a Thousand Dollars in a Home-street Bagnio.—A New York merchant, whose name we refrain from giving, went to a bagnio on Homestreet, night before last, and while there became inebriated, and, in some mysterious manner, was relieved of money and drafts to the amount of nearly one thousand dollars. Early yesterday morning he found himself in the street very drunk, and so bewildered under the influences of chagrin and pride that he knew not whether to leave the city in disgust or make an effort to recover his funds. He at length concluded that the ways of a great city were remarkably bad and that he would pocket his metropolitan experiences and carry them with him to New York, where, we hope, they may prove so beneficial as to render any further lessons of this kind entirely useless. A NEW YORKER SWINDLED OUT OF A THOUentirely useless.

PROBABLE FATAL ACCIDENT TO A LITTLE Gigs. —A child aboutsix years of age, daugh-ter of Mrs. McCartby, residing on North-street, between Sixth and Seventh, yesterday evening fell from the second story window of her mother's residence and was injured so seriously that it is thought she can not re-

GREAT OUTRAGE ON A CITIESN.—Some secondrels at Phonix, New York, who have for some reason become oftended at Mr. Gould, the President of that village, a few nights since entered his barn and sheared his horse's mane and tail, girdled his shade-trees, cut his carriage into pieces, and committed other outrages. The cause of this exhibition of malice arises from some of the efficient acts of Mr. Gould as President of the village.

The bridge across Fox River, at Appleton, Wisconsin, fell on Thursday, precipitating a team and three persons into the rapid current, though all were rescued without much injury.

NATIONAL THEATER.—Meyurbeer's magnificent opers, Robert le Diable, will be performed this evening at the National Theater by the French Opers Company, which during the past season delighted the citizens of New Orleans at their Opera-house.
During their stay in the South they were very succassful, and their performances elicited the historic encomiums of the press. Whatever their merit may be, they have amounced an excellent programme,
and one which, if well residered, will insure for thesis
a successful and agreeable visit to the Metropolis of the West.

We have had so liftle music in our city during the past winter, that, we doubt not, our readers are, like ourself, well nigh famished, and hall the coming of the present troups as a divine gift of the sweet-vefeed Muse. We shall be disappointed if the National be not crowded this evening; for if the company be realiy good, as it has been represented, the perform-really good, as it has, been represented, the performance will be worthy the patronage of every lover of musical art. The entertainment will conclude with La Chatte Metamorphose, with M'He Darry as "Minnette," a part in which she is said to have been re-markably successful.

WOOD'S THEATER. — Robert Heller, who came to this city from the East, with a regulation which entities him to be styled the "Wizard Prince," performed last night at Wood's Theater to quite a large audience. As a prestigiator he is very skillful, and many of his performances are eminently worthy of being witnessed. Persons who delight in entertainments of this kind, will find, during his stay, this cosy establishment a very agreeable place to spend an evening, and will not only be amused but astonished at the wenderful things he will show them during a visit of "Two Hours to Another World."

Suicide on Account of Marriage Melancholy Death of a Wedded Youth.

The coroner held an inquest, a day or two since, at the New York Hospital, says the Tribuna, on the body of Henry J. S. Lear, twenty years of age, who died from the effects of a dose of strychnine, taken for the purpose of ending his life. About four months ago, young Lear, who was the only son of a widowed mother, ran away from home and was gone for two months. He then returned, but would give no satisfactory explanation of his absence. Shortly afterward he disappeared again for several days, taking with him some jewelry and clothing, but returned without those articles. This he repeated several times, his mother never being able to account for his strange actions. At last he yielded to her sorrowful entreaties, and told her that he was married, but refused to divulge either the name or the residence of his wife. Lately he has appeared very downcast and dejected, but would make no explanation regarding the cause of his distress.

One day of last week, he procured a quantity of strychnine, and having swallowed a portion of it, was soon taken with convulsions. He was taken to the Hospital, where death ensued shortly after. The following letter was found in his possession:

Deen Mother: I now write you those few lines that you may see that I have some respect for you, though you thought thad none since I ran away from home. But forget the past, and pray for me that I may not be tortured in fise next world. I have suffered enough in this, and am determined to die, therefore pray for me. Wool Growing in Texas.—The Houston Telegraph says in a late issue: "Wool growing is becoming more and more popular in Texas. In a few years, if not already the case, there will be more wool raised in Texas than in any State of the Union. Every section is capable of rendering the business profitable, and every section is engaging largely in it. Wool, cotton and sugar, small grain, and every thing else having a tendency to make a State great and a people independent and happy, can be raised to perfection in Texas. When we get railroad facilities for the exportation of iron from our phills, horses and beef eatile from our prairies, wool from our pastures, small grain from our farms, cutton from our plantations, sugar from our bottom lands, our prosperity and resources can not fail to attract the eyes and envy of the world."

The boy remembers that John Kephart came to Muscatine to move the family South. On the journey, they stopped two months in Cass County, Mo., at a widow Snyder's, where Kephart helped to husk corn. One morning, soon after breakfast, his father, who had eaten breakfast well, took suddenly sick and died in less than an hour. The boy's mother, the murdered woman, Jane Willis, told him that Kephart gave his father strychnine in his food. After the death of Willis, it seems they went to the "Cherokee Country," where Kephart kept a grocery and sold whisky to the Indians. This summer they moved near Fort Des Moines. After living there some weeks or months, they started for Kansas City.

On Thursday they stopped near the bridge at Eddyville, and camped out. Mrs. Willis cooked supper, after which, complaining of being siek, laid down in the wagon and went to sleep. In the night, sometime, the boy awoke and saw that she had a deep gash in her head. The three children all got out of the wagon, and Kephart chased Joseph T., aged twelve years, and Maria Jane, aged seven, about half an hour, under and around the wagon with the ax in hand until they, too, were killed. He then placed them by the side of the mother, and pounded their heads with the wagon-hammer.

A grey-headed old man, over sixty years of age, traveling day and night with an ox-team thirty miles with the dead bodies of a mother and two children in the wagon, to find a place of concealment!—the living boy, James Harvey Willis, by his side—and then when the place was found, he stripped his victims, put their garments into the wagon, took the mother first and then the children, and hid them under the water, placing a log upon them to keep them down.

Executors Accounts of the estate of John Walker, deceased, the executors, T. Webb and Chas. Stewart, appeared in answer to a citation, requesting them to show cause why they had filed an account of their trust, that an order might be made for a distribution of the assets remaining uncollected.

Counsel for executors raised the question whether it was the duty of the executors to transfer choses in action, and other assets in kind, happening to be in their hands at this time, until certain questions now pending in the other Courts were settled in relation to the manner in which the legatees were entitled to take under the will; and the proceeding here appeared to him to be in contempt of the authority of the Court already having jurisdiction of the matter.

It was on the other side contended that the suit pending in the Superior Court related to the brewery, and that was not in question in this proceeding; that the executors had no right to come into Court and make quibbles about the construction of John Walker's will. Their time had expired and there need be no difficulty as to distribution of the assets, as the petitioners were the parties entitled to them, and, had agreed, themselves, to what proportion they should take.

Judge Hilton allowed an order that the executors file their account next Saturday; or if not ready by that time, should show cause. The motion for order of distribution was laid over until next week.

Narrow Escape of Garibaldi and His Men

Garibaldi and his little host narrowly escaped destruction after leaving Sardinia, and while on their way to Sicily. When the two steamers were out at see beyond the Sardinian coast, Garibaldi gave orders that there should be no lights on board during the night. Wishing to take a little rest, he left the deck in charge of his second, deairing him not to lose night of his consort, which was commanded by Bixio. But this steamer was the faster of the two, and after a few hours it became so dark that she could no longer be seen. Garibaldi was called, and he ordered a lantern to be hoisted as a signal, so as to let came so dark that she could no longer be seen. Garibaldi was called, and he ordered a lantern to be hoisted as a signal, so as to let Bixio see that he was too far ahead, and must slacken his speed.

Bixio did, in fact, see the light; but knowing Garibaldi's order to have none on board after nightfall, he concluded that it was some Neapolitan ship giving chase. On an instant he wore his own vessel round, and steered right against the supposed craft of the enemy with the intention of running into her, and knocking a hole in her side, if possible. But when the two vessels neared each other, Garibaldi, by the faint glimmering of the stare, saw and recognized his consort, and having rung the large bell on board, a signal previously agreed upon between himself and Bixio, and springing to the wheel, he avoided the collision. But for the chief's nerve and presence of mind the expeditionary force would have been destroyed then and there, and Garibaldi have been sent to the bottom by his best friend, who would have, perhaps shared his fait.

Some extra samples of wheat were sold on the street at Fond-du-Lac, Wisconsin, last week, at one dollar and four cents per bushel, and some fine samples of wool as high as forty-six cents.
